John McCombs Launches Congressional Campaign to Represent Illinois 7th District

CHICAGO, IL – Chicago resident John McCombs will be making the official announcement of his campaign for the US House of Representatives for Illinois District 7 at noon on Thursday, June 26th.

John is launching his campaign in response to the executive overreach and the assault on our institutions by the current administration. “The old democratic playbook is dead,” are the words prominently featured on his website. “We need leaders who understand what’s at stake and are unafraid to fight back.”

John grew up in Joliet and moved to the city of Chicago after completing his military service in August of 2017. John McCombs served as an Public Affairs Officer in the active duty Marine Corps from 2013-2017 and deployed twice. He has held a number of jobs since ending his military career, including working as a stand-up comedian.

He credits his Marine Corps and comedy experience in helping him prepare for a career in politics, “As a former active duty Marine Corps Officer, I trained to fight and win battles. As a stand up comedian, I learned to communicate to all audiences.” In his campaign announcement video he ties these attributes together, “A fighter who knows how to communicate in a modern media environment is what we need if we plan to win.”
